Don Patrick Spoke at The 22nd Annual Southeastern Symposium

Local Financial Advisor Discussed Retirement Investing Strategies at Society of Financial Service Professionals Event

Atlanta, GA (September 27, 2007) – Don Patrick, an Atlanta-based CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ professional, delivered a presentation titled “Creating Certainty in an Uncertain World... The New Rules of Investing for Retirement” before the membership of the Society of Financial Service Professionals on September 20th at Atlanta’s Cobb Galleria Centre.

Patrick delivered a 90-minute presentation that addressed how investors can maximize their potential successes and help ensure that the money they have saved doesn’t run out during the distribution stage of retirement planning. Patrick’s presentation covered:

- The Five Challenges Investors Encounter when transitioning from “Accumulator” to “Spender”
- The New ROI – Reliability of Income
- How to Determine What Retirees Really Want

- more -

Other presenters at the day-long event included Georgia Insurance Commissioner, John Oxendine, and professionals from John Hancock Insurance company.

“We addressed some of the leading edge work done in the industry,” said Patrick. “It was an opportunity to share, what I believe to be, the best methodology to date to provide a hedge for maximizing the potential success of helping to ensure our money does not run out during the distribution stage of our life.”

A sought-after financial planner, Patrick has recently delivered presentations at the national conferences for Securities America, Inc. Patrick has been interviewed by consumer publications including the New York Daily News, Kiplingers Retirement Report, www.bankrate.com and www.entrepreneur.com, as well as professional publications including Registered Rep, Financial Advisor and Investment News.
